

BEST OF gothamist

The 7 Best All You Can Eat Deals In NYC

You don't have to wait for a cruise to Barbados with your Aunt Dolores to satisfy your lust for "All-you-can-eat" style dining; there are plenty of gluttonous, no-limits feedbag-strapping opportunities on offer right here in NYC. From classy steakhouses to country barbecue joints, carb bombs to finger-licking crab boils, New York has unlimited options for every kind of palate, and sometimes at wallet-friendly prices, too. (And if bottomless booze is more your style, we've got you covered there too.)

BROTHER JIMMY'S: Cool bros across the city flock to one of these bbq outposts for SEC games and cheap cans of Natty Light. But for the gluttonous, try out the chain's unlimited ribs deals, offered on Sundays. Try out any flavor of pork ribs or get a combination plate that includes all three. You can also choose two sides—think mac and cheese, mashed potatoes and coleslaw— plus cornbread and pickles on the plate. The deal goes for $27.95 at the 8th Avenue and Murray Hill locations and $22.95 at the West Side and Original outposts and also includes unlimited draft Bud and Bud Light.